

Category:Metadata_Stars

One of the primary goals of evaluating published documentation throughout NOAA is the identification of good examples at every step of the improvement process. These examples, and the practices used to create them, need to be broadly shared in order to foster improved documentation and, equally important, processes used to create it.

This Category provides a place to recognize outstanding documentation efforts in NOAA and among our partners.